Productive Families Event

Riyadh Chamber gives considerable attention to women who are working from home especially widows, divorcees and low income women. They help them sustain their micro projects, as a key source of generating income, and turn them into productive energy in the community. These kinds of home businesses need a lot of support and subsidies from different institutions in the community. PSU, as #1 ranked private non-profit university, represented by the Community Service Department collaborated with Riyadh chamber supports this kind of micro business through the productive families' exhibition to market their product. This allows them to survive in a very competitive environment.

Open Day

Prince Sultan University's role as an institution places priority for their faculty and students, thus providing them with not only educational value but also a recreational element of entertainment.

In accordance with Dr. Rimah Al-Yahya's direction to host an Open Day for the female campus at PSU, we at the Community Service & Continuing Education Center (CSCEC) and the Public Relations Center (PR) collaborated together to host this unique event. The main objective was to provide a fun outing for PSU's female staff and students on campus.
